

I am a little concerned about the LPFM stations overpowering national and regional broadcasters.

I have been listening to a station called Air1. I have really benefited from this station because of its positive music.

I am in the Military stationed out at Edwards AFB. This station has done more to improve my life in the last year than I have been able to do with my previous 18 years in the service.

What can be done so that stations like Air1 will not be blocked out? Will this type of service benefit program syndication?

Please keep the little guys like me from possibly losing something that is very treasured.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Ian B. Scott
